140888 This Promise Of Change: One Girl's Story In The Fight For School Equality. In 1956, one year before federal troops escorted the Little Rock 9 into Central High School, fourteen year old Jo Ann Allen was one of twelve African-American students who broke the color barrier and integrated Clinton High School in Tennessee. At first things went smoothly for the Clinton 12, but then outside agitators interfered, pitting the townspeople against one another. Uneasiness turned into anger, and even the Clinton Twelve themselves wondered if the easier thing to do would be to go back to their old school. Jo Ann—clear-eyed, practical, tolerant, and popular among both black and white students—found herself called on as the spokesperson of the group. But what about just being a regular teen? This is the heartbreaking and relatable story of her four months thrust into the national spotlight and as a trailblazer in history. Based on original research and interviews. il. Social Activism

Young Activists,
Equality,
Little Rock 9,
The Children's March,
Black Lives Matter,
Environmental Issues

A young woman with dark, curly hair and a serious expression is the central figure. She is holding a large, rectangular cardboard sign in front of her chest. The sign has the words "NO RACISM" written on it in large, bold, black, hand-painted capital letters. The background is slightly blurred, showing other people, suggesting a protest or rally setting.

NO RACISM

Boyce, Jo Ann Allen

140888 This Promise Of Change: One Girl's Story In The Fight For School Equality. In 1956, one year before federal troops escorted the Little Rock 9 into Central High School, fourteen year old Jo Ann Allen was one of twelve African-American students who broke the color barrier and integrated Clinton High School in Tennessee. At first things went smoothly for the Clinton 12, but then outside agitators interfered, pitting the townspeople against one another. Uneasiness turned into anger, and even the Clinton Twelve themselves wondered if the easier thing to do would be to go back to their old school. Jo Ann--clear-eyed, practical, tolerant, and popular among both black and white students--found herself called on as the spokesperson of the group. But what about just being a regular teen? This is the heartbreaking and relatable story of her four months thrust into the national spotlight and as a trailblazer in history. Based on original research and interviews. il.
